

INTouch

with the Georgian Triangle

Blue Mountain is Open for Easter !

On Wednesday morning it hardly seemed possible that Blue would still be open. There had been lots of rain and the base was eroding rapidly. Some of the private clubs were throwing in the towel and calling it a season! Then Mother Nature, feeling guilty about what she had done to the Holiday ski season, came calling. Temperatures dropped on Wednesday evening and we were blessed with at least 1 cm of the white stuff. We woke up Thursday to a picture of all the mountains covered in a white blanket of snow. The forecast has more snow arriving throughout Easter weekend. I would plan on keeping the shorts and bikinis in the cupboard this weekend as the temperatures will not agree with this attire. Pack up the family, boards & skis and head North for one last weekend on the hills. Organize the family Easter egg hunt on the Mountain, and be prepared to talk about it all summer. Even if you don't feel like skiing, there is plenty to do in the Village as Springlicious started on April 2nd and runs through to May 18th. The restaurants are featuring great value menus. After this weekend we can turn our attention to golfing, cycling and hiking in the Georgian Triangle. However, for this weekend why not enjoy one last run on the slopes!

Happy Skiing!

“INTouch” Flash